We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower, for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Trouble that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual constiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. W. T. Brooks.

Caution!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boecher's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents.—W. T. Brooks.

STRUCK ON A REEF.

Steamer South Portland Wrecked on Pacific Coast.

The Vessel Carried a Crew of 22 Men and 17 Passengers—Of These 13 of the Crew and Four Passengers Reached the Shore.

Marshfield, Ore., Oct. 21.—The steamer South Portland, which sailed from Portland, Ore., last Sunday loaded with wheat for San Francisco, struck on Blanco Reef Monday evening at 5 o'clock during a heavy fog.

The vessel carried a crew of 22 and 17 passengers. Of these 13 of the crew and four passengers succeeded in reaching shore. Charles Huzon, the first engineer, died as they were taking him off the life raft, of exposure. Twenty-one persons are yet missing and are probably lost.

The South Portland struck bottom going at a speed of about seven knots. As soon as striking she began to settle astern, and in a minute or two slid off the reef and began to sink. Capt. McIntyre, seeing that there was no hope of saving the ship, speedily had the boats lowered. One of the boats got away from the ship's side loaded with part of the crew and some of the passengers was capsized as soon as it cleared the ship's side and when last seen was floating away in the fog without a living soul aboard.

The captain's boat with about 18 aboard succeeded in clearing, but was also capsized and only seven were able to get back to the boat. They consisted of Capt. James McIntyre, John Reimer, Emanuel Pazomimis, W. L. Wilson, L. Baker, Guy Bent and Al Bailey. They reached Port Orford Monday night. A life boat on which the following embarked succeeded in reaching shore Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Bruce, first officer; James Ward, chief engineer; T. Pizotti, second assistant engineer; John McKown, oiler; J. Driscoll, oiler; W. Hughes, fireman; W. Robertson, fireman; Jas. Atwood, seaman; H. Weber, J. H. Johnson, seaman, and Charles Huzon, the first assistant engineer.

The survivors suffered much from exposure and Capt. McIntyre is confined to his bed.

PENNSYLVANIA BUILDING.

It Will Be Erected on World's Fair Grounds at a Cost of $73,000.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 21.—The Pennsylvania commission to the St. Louis exposition met with Gov. Pennypacker at the executive department Tuesday. A location has been selected for the Pennsylvania building on a prominent drive close to the Arkansas, Connecticut and Indiana buildings. The average cost of the state buildings on the ground will be $35,000, but Pennsylvania's building will cost $73,000.

August 20 will be observed as Pennsylvania day, it being the anniversary of the battle of Fallen Timbers, when Gen. Wayne, a Pennsylvanian, achieved a great victory.

George Oliver, of Pittsburg, chairman of the committee on manufacturers, submitted a list of manufacturers who will exhibit from this state, over 100 in number.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Ex-Deputy Surveyor Indicted For Embezzlement.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 21.—In the United States district court Tuesday L. N. Ross pleaded guilty to an indictment for embezzling moneys of the United States. Ross is the former deputy surveyor of the port, who, on September 11, took a package of money from the office of the collector of the port to be shipped to the subtreasury in Philadelphia and failed to ship a portion of the amount in the package. The package contained $3,000 and when received in Philadelphia $600 was missing. Since his arrest it is said Ross has made restitution to the government.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

Ten Indictments in All Returned Against Capt. Boyd.

St. Louis, Oct. 21.—It was learned Tuesday night that ten indictments in all had been returned by the federal grand jury against Capt. Boyd. Nine of them charge him with aiding and abetting naturalization frauds. The other charges perjury. Each indictment contains from three to five counts. Capt. Boyd appeared before Federal Judge Adams late Tuesday and entered a plea of not guilty to the charges. He gave bond in the sum of $10,000.

John Phillip Sousa Injured.

Washington, Oct. 21.—John Phillip Sousa, the bandmaster, was thrown from his horse while riding in the city Tuesday. He fell on his head and while unconscious for a few minutes, was not seriously hurt. His physician expected him out again in a week.

The President Will Vote.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The president announced his intention of going to Oyster Bay to cast his vote on election day. He and Secretary Loeb, who also votes in Oyster Bay, will leave Washington probably on the morning of November 3.

An Eight Thousand Mile Walk.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 21.—C. E. Norris reached here Tuesday after an 8,000 mile walk from San Francisco, undertaken to cure consumption. He started on August 8, 1901, and followed the railroads as far as possible.

CANADIANS ARE SORE.

Unfavorable Comments on the Alaska Commission Decision.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The general opinion is that Canada will have to make the best of it in the Alaska decision. It is declared that it is another lesson in self reliance and consequently people are already asking how long it will take to build a railway to the Yukon and how much it will cost.

Many speak strongly on the subject and recite instances where Canada has had to succumb to what is politely called "English diplomacy." While the action of the Canadian commissioners in refusing to sign the award will be endorsed, it is considered a troublesome question is well rid of.

When the railway subsidies were under discussion Tuesday night Col. Hughes suggested that an all Canadian road be built to the Yukon from the Pacific. Sir Wilfred Laurier, the premier, replied that Canada would have to do this now that the award had gone against her in the Alaska boundary controversy.

Mr. Courley, in a rather low tone, said that Canada would have to try to get back the territory that is lost. There was a cry of "order" and that ended the discussion.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Discussing the Alaskan boundary decision the Telegram (independent) says:

"The Alaskan boundary controversy has ended just as all controversies which British diplomacy plays a part must end, in victory for a country that is unscrupulous enough to claim everything and cunning enough to trade on the English good will that would sacrifice anything rather than keep open a cause of difference with the United States."

The Witness (liberal) says editorially:

"Ever since the Alaska boundary difference came to the fore, our conviction has been that Canada would substantially lose her case. When the United States consented to submission of the question to a joint high commission it was with the certainty that she could not lose an assurance universally expressed that she would gain. It was as certain as any human question could be that no commissioners appointed by the United States would go back to their country having voted to sacrifice Skagway and Dyea. To make assurance doubly sure the president sacrificed his dignity by selecting commissioners who had already publicly and determinedly committed themselves."

Montreal, Oct. 21.—La Patrie, the organ of J. I. Tarte, ex-minister of public works, says editorially about the Alaskan decision:

"Canada should never have agreed to settle the question except by arbitration where one country appoints representatives and the other country represents, and these an umpire. The manner in which the latter was settled was proposed to Canada in 1899 and then Laurier refused it. Six months ago he accepted the same proposition. Why was that?"

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

The Freedom of the City of Limerick Given to Him.

Limerick, Ire., Oct. 21.—The freedom of this city was given to Andrew Carnegie Tuesday.

Referring in a speech to emigration, Mr. Carnegie said that "Ireland's loss in this respect is America's gain." He looked for the day, he continued, when the United States and Canada would have a population of 250,000,000 and with the British Isles would form one nation. "We are an English speaking people," he said, "and we are aliens to the nations of Europe." Subsequently Mr. Carnegie laid the foundation stone of a library.

THE MCLEAN MACHINE GUN.

It Showed a Speed Fire of About 900 Shots Per Minute.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 21.—Lieut. Joseph H. Rohrbacher, engineer of ordnance, detailed by the United States navy, witnessed a firing exhibition of the McLean machine guns for musket ammunition and a machine gun for one-pounder ammunition; also a long recoil test of the United States 14-pounder, high power gun on the Erie street pier here Tuesday. In the exhibition a seven millimetre machine gun showed a speed of fire of about 900 shots per minute.

Extra Session of Congress Called.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The president Tuesday issued a proclamation calling the 58th congress in extraordinary session on November 9, at 12 o'clock. The proclamation states that the purpose of the session is to consider the commercial convention between the United States and Canada, which requires the approval of congress.

New Canadian Railroad.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The National Trans-Continental railway bill was read a third time in the senate Tuesday and passed. The bill provides for a new railroad from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the agricultural districts of Northern Canada.

Assumes the Title of Rear Admiral.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Rear Adm. Roy Bradford relinquished the administration of the bureau of equipment and repair of the navy department Tuesday and was succeeded by Capt. Geo. A. Converse, who now assumes the title of rear admiral.

Reciprocity With Canada.

OUTSIDE DOWIE HALL.

Thirty Thousand People Try to Hear the Prophet.

A Crush at the Door Nearly Became a Riot—Four Hundred Police Called to Keep the Crowd in Order—Reporters Excluded.

New York, Oct. 22.—"Just to show that I am in favor with the Christian merchant princes of this city," said Dr. Dowie, Wednesday, "I will announce the money which has come to me this morning alone. These sums are from men unknown to me, but who evidently believe I am right. One sends me a check for $5,000; another a check for $1,000; another for $1,500, and another gave me $200. These contributions are unsolicited. They were accompanied by the kindest words."

During Dr. Dowie's sermon a number of students marched out in squads. Dr. Dowie was forced to stop, and after he began again he was interrupted by a college yell from outside the garden ending with the slogan, "Dowie, Dowie, Dowie."

"They are like most of the students I know," said Dr. Dowie, "their brains are in their feet."

At this a well dressed man got up and as he was leaving Dowie shouted at him: "You are not commonly decent."

For the first time Wednesday Dr. Dowie ordered reporters excluded and those who were seated at the reporters' table were escorted to the door at Dr. Dowie's orders to his guards to "Clear the tainted vipers out of here. Be careful how you handle them, not to get any of their filth on you. Now get out, you mean dogs, you yellow scoundrels of the press. We will have no more of you in here. I am paying for this place, you liars. This is my building. Hurry up, guards, the sight of them disgusts me. Don't waste any restoration talk on the liars. It's useless. They have sold their souls to the devil. I never hope to convert a reporter. They would be backsliders."

New York, Oct. 22.—Thirty thousand people, according to the estimates of the police, tried to get into Madison Square garden to see John Alexander Dowie Wednesday night. About one-third that number had secured admittance when at 8 o'clock Dowie ordered the doors closed. When the other 20,000 found themselves shut out the wildest disorder prevailed and the police, 400 strong, were for a time utterly unable to cope with the mad rush of the crowd. Men and women were knocked down and trampled on and many narrowly escaped death in the crush.

In the surging of the throng Grace George, who was on her way to a theater where she is playing, was swept off her feet and trampled on and had her clothing badly torn. She accused the police of handling her roughly.

Mrs. William J. Buckley, of Newark, N. J., was caught in the crush and fell fainting to the street. She was badly bruised. Inspector Walsh, who was near the woman when she fell, and with the aid of 15 policemen, rescued her and carried her to safety.

William A. Brady, theater manager and husband of Grace George; Lorenzo Winter, broker, and Channing Pollock, press agent, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct. Traffic was blocked for an hour.

Minister Combs has now cabled that he has secured the prisoner's discharge.

THE L. J. STERN HEARING.

Accused of False Pretenses in Supplying Government With Mail Satchels.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Leopold J. Stern, the Baltimore contractor arrested in Toronto under two warrants charging false pretense in the supply to the government of satchels, for rural free delivery carriers, was given a preliminary hearing in the supreme court Tuesday. Stern pleaded not guilty.

Post Office Inspector Walter S. Mayer, who worked up the case against Stern, was called to the witness stand, but before his examination was concluded court adjourned for the day.

Much of the day was consumed in arguments by attorneys. Assistant District Attorney Taggart reviewed the charges against Stern, who, he said, submitted a bill and received money for satchel straps which he never furnished.

"The bill on its face," said Mr. Taggart, "was a lie. There were 1,557 satchels supplied, but they did not have the straps as stipulated in the contract."

The defense contended that if the department ordered that the "Lamb straps," with which Stern was supplied and which he used in place of his own, be used, as they interpreted the government's petition, Stern was certainly entitled to the money as such order constituted a modification of the contract.

Post Office Inspector Mayer identified Stern's original contract with the government, which was submitted in evidence, despite the objections of the defense.

The defense contended that the United States did agree that Stern furnish the satchels without the straps, the government supplying him with certain straps known as the Lamb straps which only one concern could furnish.

Mr. Taggart called attention to the omission in Stern's bill of anything to indicate that he had not supplied the straps as stipulated. He explained later to the inspectors, said Mr. Taggart, that the government relieved him of the expense of the straps.

In his testimony Inspector Mayer said he had a conversation with the defendant at his place of business in Baltimore in which the latter acknowledged having but one contract with the government for the furnishing of satchels and that his contract called for a certain kind of strap to be placed on the satchels.

On cross-examination the defense brought out the admission that Stern had claimed that he had secured the permission of two postal officials to furnish the satchels without straps.

Hard To Bear.

J. W. Walls, Superintendent of Streets of Lebanon, Kentucky, living on East Main Street in that city, says:

"With my nightly rest broken, owing to irregularities of the kidneys, suffering intensely from severe pains in the small of my back and through the kidneys, and annoyed by painful passages of abnormal secretions, life was anything but pleasant for me. No amount of doctoring relieved this condition, and for the reason that nothing seemed to give me even temporary relief, I became about discouraged. One day I noticed in the newspapers the case of a man who was afflicted as I was and was cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. His words of praise for this remedy were so sincere that on the strength of his statement I went to the H. H. Murrey Drug Co.'s store and got a box. I found that the medicine was exactly as powerful a kidney remedy as represented. I experienced quick and lasting relief. Doan's Kidney pills will prove a blessing to all sufferers from kidney disorders who will give them a fair trial."

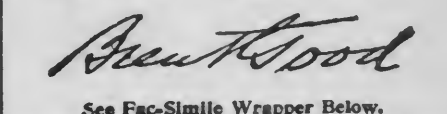

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Walls will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price 50 cents per box.

He never leaves the house at Copenhagen, but is able to move about in it with the aid of two canes. Five years ago he was still quite active and as regular as Kant in his habits. Every day he took the same walk, stopped before the clock on the university building to regulate his watch and then read the newspapers in the Grand cafe.

WONDERFUL MACHINE.

Blows Glass Better Than Men, and Will Drive Many Workmen Out of Their Jobs.

The accompanying photograph is the first ever taken of machine-made window glass in the world. These three rollers were produced a few days ago at the Alexandria (Ind.) branch of the American Window Glass company's plant, and where the Lubbers machine, the first successful of many made, was completed and experimented with until perfected.

So perfect has this machine been made that the company is risking millions of dollars in the proposition to install it in its 41 plants distributed over the country, and dispense with hand blowers entirely. The men were at first skeptical when told that the machine would destroy their trade, which has yielded many of them $450 to $600 per month; but they have at last been forced to admit that it has been but too true, and as a result many of the best double-ring Belgian blowers are going back to the old country, and others are seeking other pursuits.

The machine is the patent of John H. Lubbers, of Allegheny, Pa., a practical glassblower, who has also made several other labor-saving inventions. Lubbers will reap millions as his share of the proceeds of the invention. Skilled mechanics from the Westinghouse works, Pittsburgh, Pa., have been working behind high walls and barred gates for months in the erection and installation of the machines, which no man other than old and skilled employees of the company was allowed to see. The gates are yet closed to outsiders, and the photos were made at the request of the company, but that of the machines was denied, as the latest improvements to them have not been patented. When all have been allowed the company will let the public see the machines work, but not until then. These rollers are respectively 10 and 19 feet in length and 30 inches in diameter—larger than any hand blower could possibly make. The glass is perfect in temper and free from blisters.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

REFORM BY SURGERY.

By Simple Skull Operation a Degenerate Lad Was Transformed Into a Useful Citizen.

London is just now much interested in two surgical cases, giving results in changing the nature of the subjects which promise to render valuable assistance in pointing the way to the reformation of criminals. One of the patients was a boy of good family, who had developed brutal instincts which seemed to be beyond control. He gave his time to the invention of malicious mischief, delighted in killing or wounding, was the terror of the neighborhood in which he lived, and promised to grow up a desperado and criminal. A clever surgeon took him in hand, examined his head with care, located what he considered the seat of the trouble, removed a portion of the skull, and thus relieved the deforming pressure. The change was immediate. The lad forgot his previous tastes and habits and was restored to his parents a normal and lovable boy, the complete antithesis of his former self. The other was a soldier who was injured in a skirmish, and after his discharge for disability became a thief and burglar. His previous character had been unexceptionable, his military record was the best, and the change was naturally attributed to the injury to his head, caused by a blow from the butt of a musket. When he was taken in hand by the surgeons he had about come to the end of a career of crime, being paralyzed on one side and unable to get about except on crutches. A depression in the skull sufficient to bring an abnormal local pressure upon the brain was found, and an operation was decided upon, which restored his physical powers as well as his mental and moral faculties. His discharge was secured and he has since lived an industrious and honest life, with no evidence of a disposition to go wrong.—N. Y. Times.

THE QUEEN OF THE SEA.

Battleship Missouri Made An Average
Speed of 18.05 Knots An Hour.

Boston, Oct. 22.—The new battleship
Missouri Wednesday proved herself the queen of the seas for battleships of her class in a speed trial trip over the Cape Ann course with weather conditions of a considerably handicapping nature.

Steaming over a course of 32 nautical miles and return the battleship made an average speed of 18.05 knots per hour, which with tidal corrections greatly in her favor, it is believed will advance it to 18.22, a new world's record for battleships.

The first part of the run was made against a strong northwest breeze which kept down the speed to 17.34 knots, but coming back the conditions were more favorable, and the 33 knots were covered in 1 hour and 47 minutes and 9 seconds, a speed of 18.46 knots per hour.

The big battleship at one time attained a speed of 18.75 knots per hour.
The contract requirements call for 18 knots and a margin was very gratifying, not only to the builders, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., but to the government officials on board. The best previous record made by a battleship in the Missouri's class is that of the Maine, a sister ship, which was 17.98 per hour.

The Missouri left her anchorage in President's roads shortly after 8 Wednesday morning and steamed down to Cape Ann, where the measured course began. On the battleship was the naval trial board, a number of naval officers stationed in and near Boston and guests of the company. The weather was clear, but a stiff quartering breeze blew from the northwest and roughed up the water considerably.

On the northern leg the engine attained a speed of 121 revolutions a minute and the average for the entire trial was 117.

At the conclusion of the speed test,
the Missouri was tested as to her steering abilities. She described the figure 8 turning in from 20 to 25 seconds, with an angle of heel of about 4 per cent. The usual stopping, backing and anchoring tests were then given, at the conclusion of which the vessel returned to Boston light and after landing her passengers started for Newport News.

EDITOR MORSS' DEATH.

Lost His Balance in a Window and Fell Three Stories.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 22.—Samuel
F. Morss, editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, fell from the third story window of the Sentinel building Wednesday morning and died a few moments later. He had been in poor health for some time. It was announced by his private secretary that he had probably opened the window for air and was overcome by heart trouble. Financial troubles have been worrying him recently. He left a widow and one daughter. Samuel F. Morss was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., December 15, 1852. In 1871-75 he was a member of the editorial staff and editor-in-chief of the Fort Wayne Gazette, and later became editor and part owner of the Fort Wayne Sentinel. He was one of the founders of the Kansas City Star.
After returning from a European trip,
from 1883 to 1888 he was Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times.
In 1892 he was chairman of the Indiana delegation to the national democratic convention and a member of the committee on resolutions. From 1893 to 1897 he was United States consul at Paris.

MORE DISMISSALS.

Three More Employees Removed From Their Positions.

This Action is the Result of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General's Report on Irregularities in the Department.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Postmaster General Payne Wednesday removed from office Michael W. Louis, superintendent of supplies of the post office department; Louis Kempner, chief of the registry division of the third assistant postmaster general's office, and
C. B. Terry, a $900 clerk in the post office department, and directed the postmaster at New York to remove Otto Weis, a clerk.

These removals are the first result of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow's report on the irregularities in the post office department. Information of the contemplated discharges did not leak out at the department until after 4 o'clock.

Following is Postmaster General
Payne's official statement:

"Michael W. Louis has been removed from the office of superintendent of the division of supplies because the recent investigation shows that he influenced the awarding of contracts for supplies to favored bidders; that he has been extravagant and wasteful in the administration of his office; and that he has paid excessive prices for supplies to favored contractors.

"Louis Kempner, superintendent of registry system, has been removed for incompetent and negligent administration, for wasteful and reckless extravagance in sending expensive manifold registration books to a large number of small fourth-class post offices, and for violating the revenue laws by a system of petty smuggling.

"C. B. Terry, a clerk in the division of supplies, has been removed for making false affidavits; attempting to obtain money from clerks under the guise that he could influence their promotion; and general inefficiency."

The postmaster general also stated that the postmaster at New York had been directed to remove Otto Weis, a clerk in the New York post office, for collecting money from clerks to influence legislation and to procure promotions.

Terry is from Indiana. He was temporary clerk in the post office department and was afterward removed. He made charges that he had been discharged from his position by John M.
Masten, then chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster general, but now assistant superintendent of the railway mail service, because he had refused to give money to Masten for his retention and the president directed his re-instatement. It is understood that the investigation failed to substantiate Terry's charges and his permanent removal is the result of the failure.

St. Louis, Oct. 22.—With all the merly was. Cardinal Gibbons, with an imposing array of the princes of the church, officiated at pontifical high requiem mass, which was sung by 100

seminarians from Kenrick seminary, accompanied by the immense organ in the old cathedral.

His Wife Was a Figure in the Escape of the Biddle Brothers.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 22.—Peter K.

county jail, was Wednesday granted a divorce from his wife Kate, the jury finding that the charge of infidelity was sustained. Mrs. Soffel was a sensational figure in the escape from the jail of the convicted murderers, Ed and John Biddle, nearly two years ago.
For her part in the escape Mrs. Soffel is serving a sentence in the Western penitentiary. She was not present at the trial and no evidence in her favor was offered.

THE THEATER.

During her engagement at the Theater Republic, Nance O'Neil is to appear for the first time in Sardou's "La Tosca" and "Fedora." It is also highly probable that she will add "The Scarlet Letter" to her repertoire.

Bronson Howard, the dramatist, is in Pasadena, Cal., where he expects to remain two or three years. "I have baffled the doctors," he says. "They cannot tell what is the matter with me. Three years ago they said I needed rest and for three years I wandered over Europe and Egypt. Here I am better than I have been since my health became impaired."

One reason for the better appreciation and enjoyment of the drama in France than in other countries, is said to be the habit there of general reading of the plays in book form before they are seen. Very few important productions go upon the Paris stage that are not taken up and carefully perused by the theater-going public. When productions like "Cyrano de Bergerac," "L'Aiglon," and other pieces of that order are preparing for presentation, the books of the play are in great demand and sell by the hundreds of thousands.

The late Luigi Arditi had only a poor acquaintance with the English language and this failing sometimes led him into awkward verbal eccentricities. At a promenade concert in London he was called upon to explain that a singer would be compelled to appear in a traveling costume because of a railroad blockade. He did so and concluded thus: "So, ladies and gentlemen, Mlle. De Lido is undressed, but she will sing if you veeeh." Arditi once visited Stratford-on-Avon and was shown all the relics connected with Shakespeare. "Ah, I remember," he said, "Shakespeare, yes, 'Romeo e Giulietta,' 'Macbeth,' 'Hamlet.' He was a great librettist."

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Appliques of muslin figure in millinery.

Twine-colored lace is used effectively on white linens.

If you have a pretty throat wear one of the low Byron collars.

Jet fringes, as well as silk and linen, are prophesied tremendous vogue.

A shade between orange and rose is effective on either castor or gray.

In colorings, marine blue and green combinations are still much in favor.

Chains of daisies, violets or roses are worn by very young girls with evening dress.

Long ends ornament everything—fringes, ribbons and pendant ornaments.

A new sleeve has a long, tight, wrinkled cuff and a full puff above the elbow.

Linon buttons embroidered are most attractive on gowns of the same material.

Revers of white linen embroidered in red used on a gray serge gown are stylish.

To get a really original chain return to your childhood days and string your own beads.

Call it gauging, shirring, cording or what you will—only so you have it on your frocks.

Dainty, fluffy little revers are a becoming finish to some chemises and nightgowns.

It's an oddly complexioned woman who does not look well in one of the many violet shades.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Eight survivors of "the forty-niners" who went from Baltimore to California in the early days of the rush to gold held a reunion. The youngest of them is 79 years old.

Dr. Le Baron R. Briggs, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences of Harvard university, has been chosen president of Radcliffe college for women, succeeding Mr. S. Louis Agassiz, who resigned recently. Dr. Briggs is a physician recently characterized by President Eliot, of Harvard, as "patient, tender, discerning, candid, just and earnest, because convinced of the overwhelming preponderance of good in the student world."

Phineas T. Lounsbury, an ex-governor of Connecticut, and now president of New York bank, made his debut at a dinner in Ridgely, a small town of his native state, where he returned during the summer months. A main during the summer months. A year or so ago he was elected mayor and still holds the place. This spring a lot of his young friends as one of his name on the ticket as one of the town constables. He was sworn in. "I accepted the office and," he says, "I get my fun out of it, watching the spend my leisure time in and in making them keep off the sidewalk, and their wheels and live up to laws in other ways."

POETIC NUGGETS.

Freedom's Jubilee.
What sounds are those that greet our ears,
Like voices swelling loud?
What means this concourse gathered near,
Like some fast-driving cloud?
What shouts are those, and wild acclamations,
That cleave the summer air?
Hurrah! Hurrah! Lift up your eyes! The flag we love is there!

On many a long and weary march those silver stars have gazed;
O'er many a hard-fought battlefield those crimson stripes have blazed;
And many a triumph has been won beneath its colors bright,
By war-scarred veterans who fought for freedom and the right!
Then fling abroad that glorious flag! Set all its splendors free!
Fling out the stripes! Fling out the stars! 'Tis freedom's jubilee!

And ah, those silver stars have gazed on many a peaceful scene,
While shrined as sacred relics hung war's erstwhile weapons keen!
The bugle's voice that called to arms in shrill and martial strain
Since then has sung the song of peace o'er many a fruitful plain;
The ruddy camp-fire shines no more on civil strife to-day,
But lights in friendly bivouac now, comrades in Blue and Gray!
Then fling abroad our country's flag! Wait it o'er land and sea!
Fling out the stripes! Fling out the stars! 'Tis freedom's jubilee!

O flag, proud flag of liberty! Though war's dark visage looms
To cast once more upon our land its terrors and its glooms,
Thy silver stars and crimson stripes shall float from freedom's dome
While beats one heart beneath thy folds to claim this land as home!
The spirits of our gallant sires have never passed away;
The blood that fired their loyal hearts throbs in our veins to-day!
Then float in majesty on high! Float over land and sea!
Fling out thy stripes! Fling out thy stars! 'Tis freedom's jubilee!
—Helen Whitney Clark, in Woman's Home Companion.

Brace Up.
Thorns are on the roses, yes,
Clouds before the sun;
But we'll pick the blooms, I guess,
Pluck 'em every one!
An' we'll treasure them the more
For the stabs we got;
Ain't you glad the sun ain't out?
Might have been too hot!

Ain't you glad it's rainin', too?
Hollers all are full,
And you'll see the skies are blue
When there comes a lull;
An' you'll hear the whistle sweet
Of the whippoorwill,
When the perfumed shadows come
Troopin' from the hill.

Let the old world keeper gait,
Let her roll along!
If you're glad don't stand an' wait,
Tell it in a song!
If you're sorrowin' brace up—
It'll all come right;
If the side to'ards you is dark
To'other side is bright.
—J. M. Lewis, in Houston Post.

A Plea for Patriotism.
Noisy? Well, yes, perhaps it is;
But to-day the youngsters have cause for mirth.
Those cannons roar and rockets whizz
To celebrate the nation's birth.
So let the boys have their fill of noise—
The Fourth of July comes but once a year.
And, old as I am, I could join these boys,
Make noise for noise, give cheer for cheer.

I tell you it makes my old blood boil
When I think of the deeds that our grand-sires wrought.
With many a complaint for bitter toll,
They starved and froze brave as they fought.

Had it not been for them, think what we'd be—Colonies! Bowing to prince and peer.
So I let my boys make a noise, you see—
The Fourth, after all, comes but once a year.
—Robert T. Hardy, Jr., in Munsey's Magazine.

Our Country's Natal Day.
We praise Thee for the Past, O God,
On this our country's natal day;
The glorious paths our fathers trod,
The hero blood that of our sod
Makes more than common clay;
The work they wrought that nothing mars;
Our banner, Freedom's Stripes and Stars.

And for the present, fair and bright,
We thank Thee, O Thou King of kings;
For love of justice and of right,
For strength and courage in the fight—
These are no idle things,
Since blest the land whose life-blood runs
Through noble sires and gallant sons.

But for the Future, O, we crave
Thy benediction, Prince of Peace,
That still unstained our flag may wave
Above the merciful, the brave,
Till stars and planets cease—
Where'er its glories are unfurled
Revered and loved of all the world.
—Lalla Mitchell, in Good Housekeeping.

The Glorious Fourth.
Over the country, bells are ringing,
Over the homes of the glad and free;
"Union Forever," the birds are singing
While we are keeping our jubilee.
Boom of cannon the meadows over,
Throbbing of drums on the morning air;
Every boy is a loyal rover,
Bearing the banner so bright and fair.

"Freedom for all," our motto ever,
Flaming in rockets of crimson hue;
Union of states no hand can sever
Under the Red, the White and the Blue.
This is the glorious Fourth we're keeping,
Here in the land of the proud and free,
Voices cheering and pulses leaping,
Honoring the nation's jubilee.
—Ruth Raymond, in Minneapolis House-keeper.

Two Views.
His mother says that Harold craves
A teacher who can understand him.
She says that when he misbehaves
By kindness only she'd command him.
He's sensitive to words unkind,
Impatient, too, of contradiction—
The dominating sort of mind
That works the best without restriction.
The neighbors say that Harold gets
His own sweet way more than he ought to;
That when he yells and screams and frets
A slipper's what he should be brought to.
That measures mild he never heeds;
For drastic ones you'll find them sticking—
In short, they say, what Harold needs
Is just a good old-fashioned licking.

CHAPTER 50.

An act to provide for an amendment to Section 181 of the Constitution of Kentucky.

"The General Assembly may, by general laws only, authorize CITIES OR TOWNS OF ANY CLASS to provide for taxation for municipal purposes, on personal property, tangible and intangible, based on income, licenses or franchises, in lieu of an ad valorem tax thereon;

"Provided, cities of the first class shall not be authorized to omit the imposition of an ad valorem tax on such property of any steam railroad, street railway, ferry, bridge, gas, water, heating, telephone, telegraph, electric light or electric power company."

Civic League.

The thirty ladies of Paris Literary Club of the Paris Civic League, are in a position to begin tree planting and to give cleaner streets, and in other ways improving the city.

They expect to have shade trees along the line of the new interurban road on the Lexington pike, which will add much to the comfort and pleasure of travelers in the "good old summer time."

Quite a number of farmers living along the road, have signified their willingness to plant trees and otherwise help the project along. The following farmers have interested themselves and have agreed to plant trees:

Messrs. John A. Lyle, Claude M. Thomas, Forrest Letton, Frank Hall, Matt Kenney, Chas. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Ussery, Messrs. W. H. Jacoby, Late Jacoby, Aaron and Broadus Smedley and Vernon Berry.

There are other farmers along the line that will no doubt take the matter in hand and aid in the good work.

World's Fair Work in Kentucky Is Progressing.

APPLES PLACED IN COLD STORAGE.

Louisville Fish Net Maker is to Give Demonstration of His Work in Fish and Game Building—Fine Corn Comes From Washington County for the Exhibit.

—The very best of fruit shown at the State Fair at Owensboro was shipped to Louisville after the exhibition and placed in cold storage, to be sent to St. Louis next April for Kentucky's horticultural exhibit at the World's Fair. The Kentucky Exhibit Association was able to get some very fine specimens of apples and pears in this way. Several of the county fairs during the fall were also used as a vehicle for gathering excellent fruit. Mr. W. A. Huggins, president of the South Kentucky Fair Association, which held its forty-sixth annual exhibition at Glasgow in September, made arrangements during the show there for a large number of apples from Barren county.

—Hon. E. K. Renaker of Berry, in Harrison county, a member of the Live Stock Exhibit Committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, is taking deep interest in the live stock exhibit at the World's Fair next year. This is especially true as to jacks and mules. He has asked that stalls be reserved for the stock of both T. B. Adams of Brighton and James M. Terry of Cynthia. These two gentlemen will send thirty-five jacks and jennets to St. Louis, to be exhibited during the exposition. Mr. Renaker writes that other stock from his end of the state will also be entered in the competition.

—John J. Tully of Louisville, famous for his hand-made fish nets, has been invited by Mr. Tarleton H. Bean, chief of the department of Fish and Game at the World's Fair, to make a special display of the product of his factory in Louisville. Chief Bean wants Mr. Tully to make an exhibit wherein much life will be displayed—that is, he wants him to make fish nets in the space to be assigned him. Mr. Tully is considering the matter and will probably go to St. Louis and remain on the grounds throughout the exposition.

—A large part of Kentucky's horticultural space at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will be filled with fruit in glass; that is the smaller fruits, such as plums, cherries and berries, together with peaches. The Horticultural Committee of the Association has furnished glass jars to all who would promise to put up fruit according to formulae offered. Among those who have been most successful in preserving specimens in solution for this display is Mr. G. W. Stroud of Berry Ferry, in Livingston county.

—Perhaps no finer corn from Kentucky will be displayed in the agricultural exhibit at the World's Fair next year than that shown by Mr. Robert J. Greer of Bloomfield. He has gathered for the Kentucky Exhibit Association several of his best specimens of yellow corn, known as the "Dugan," together with a number of white ears, known as the "Greer" variety. Five of these ears aggregate nine pounds, one alone weighing two pounds. Three of them are over 12 inches in length.

—Editor C. A. Brasher of the Hopkinsville Messenger has brought to the attention of the Kentucky Exhibit Association a lot of very valuable relics in the possession of Mr. W. S. Bom of Fruit Hill, in Christian county. The collection includes a pair of old buck-skin breeches, beaded; a pair of rubber boots worn a hundred years ago; a commission of an officer in the Revolutionary War, and a flint-lock rifle.

—While Mr. W. H. Giltner of Eminence is only a member of the Live Stock Committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, he has taken deep interest in other departments in which Kentucky will make displays at the World's Fair. This is especially true of agriculture. He cultivated a half-acre each of corn, wheat and rye especially for this exhibit, and will send in the samples in their various stages.

—The Boone county exhibit in Kentucky's space at the World's Fair is being looked after by J. W. Kennedy of Union P. O. He is securing samples of all kinds of grain grown in the county and has the assistance of a number of well known farmers in his efforts.

—Three cubes, showing the various ways of finishing the stone, one 6 inches, another 8 inches and the third 10 inches, have been sent to the Kentucky Exhibit Association from the quarry of the McWilliams Construction company, at Eddyville, for Kentucky's mineral display at the World's Fair next year.

—Two barrels of the finest geniton apples have reached the Kentucky Exhibit Association in Louisville from the orchard of Mr. J. W. Miller, near Mt. Vernon. These will be placed in cold storage and held there until the World's Fair opens April 30 next year.

—R. C. Estill, the chairman of the Fayette Agricultural and Horticultural Committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, writes that his county has collected a splendid exhibit, especially of wheat and grasses.

—W. A. Thornton of Bradfordsville is to furnish a quantity of land striped blue grass seed, together with orchard grass seed, for Kentucky's agricultural display at the St. Louis Exposition.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Mrs. A. Lloyd Smith is the president of a company organized with a capital stock of $100,000, to propagate eastern oysters in Willata harbor, Washington. Mrs. Smith has large interests in Mexican rubber plantations and mines.

Annie Shingleur, of Jackson, Miss., has been for several years manager for a firm dealing in cotton. She thoroughly understands the business, having worked her way up from the position of bookkeeper. She is as well a devotee of outdoor sports and a woman of literary attainments.

The widow of "Brave Bill Anthony," whose coolness the night that the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor made him famous, has been given a clerkship in the permanent census bureau, with a salary of $900 a year. When Anthony committed suicide he left his widow destitute.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Mitchell is real estate agent for three blocks of the poorest tenement houses in Boston. She collects rents from about 500 families, and carries on an extensive educational and charitable work among her tenants. She has introduced into the section a kindergarten and a branch of the public library, and in the course of her rent collecting manages to give a good many useful hints to tenement residents.

SCIENTIFIC GLEANINGS.

Darwin asserted that there is insanity among animals, just as there is among human beings.

Cacao palms are used to give coffee shrubs the shade they require. Their crop is almost equally profitable.

Physicists will be most unwilling to accept the statement that radium can melt more than its own weight of ice per hour and yet undergo no change in potency. The laws of conservation of energy, the principles of thermodynamics, have hitherto been thought to be unassailable, but the manifestations of radium have led some to think it possible that they, too, must yield to the eternal flux of opinions.

The length of coast line seen by Borchgrevink in 1900 and Capt. Scott recently suggest the probability of an antarctic continent. The nearest approach to the south pole—that of Scott—was 532 miles, while "farthest north," by Count Abruzzi, was 239 miles from the north pole. The difficulty in exploring the southern sea is greater than in the northern, because of the absence of animal life to furnish fresh meat.

ASIATIC AFFAIRS.

Babies in Japan are counted two years old the first New Year's day after their birth.

Great quantities of cheap American cigarettes are being smoked by natives in India.

In the first week in May the temperature in some parts of India rose to 114 degrees in the shade.

Another step toward civilization by a heathen nation is seen in the taxing of dogs one yen a year in Tokyo.

The wives of Siamese noblemen cut their hair so that it sticks straight up from their heads. The average length of it is about one and a half inches.

The following figures are interesting as showing how the plague epidemic has spread in India during recent years. There were in 1897 56,000 recorded deaths; in 1900, 93,000; in 1901, 274,000; and in 1902, 577,000. During the first three months of the present year the mortality was 334,000, that in March last being no less than 136,000.

FACTS ABOUT FARMING.

The Astor family of New York has bought land in Mexico for the largest cattle ranch in the world.

The average gross returns from all cultivated lands in the country is less than $10.50 an acre, and for cereal crops only $8.02 an acre.

As a result of the drought and accompanying agricultural and industrial depression in Australia, a large number of colonists have emigrated to Canada.

Not more than 350 square miles of territory are under cultivation in henequin or sisal hemp, yet on this small area is produced the fiber that literally binds the wheat harvests of the world.

Secretary Wilson expects in the near future to see grain and fruits growing on the tract of land between Salt Lake and Saltair. This result he expects to be accomplished by riding the soil of its alkali.

THE TAG ENDS OF THINGS.

The state of New Hampshire gets more than $5,000,000 each season from summer boarders.

The racing automobile is the deadliest toy that millionaireism has ever amused itself with.

It is proposed to dispense medicines by means of slot machines in Paris, and the physicians are earnestly protesting against the scheme as full of danger.

The captain of a British tank steamer from London reported on his arrival in New York the other day that his vessel ran into smoke from the forest fires about 600 miles out at sea.

The difficulty in damaging a war balloon in midair was recently shown by tests made in Austria. The experimenters anchored a balloon at a height of 7,000 feet and had gunners, who had not been given the distance, to try to disable it. It required 22 shots to find the range, even approximately, and not until the sixty-fourth round was the balloon hit.

CUPID'S ARROW.

—The marriage of Miss Ann Wallace, of Versailles, and Mr. Nicholas Ford Brent, of this city, was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Wallace, in Versailles, Kentucky.

The wedding was a quiet one, on account of the recent bereavement in Mr. Brent's family, but was a very beautiful one and one in which friends and relatives all over Kentucky were very much interested.

The beauty of the houses was enhanced by handsome decorations of plants and flowers and the whole lower floor gave the bridal suggestion in its white and green tones.

The bride entered with her father and was unusually handsome and attractive in her lovely wedding gown of pearl white satin princess and trimmed gracefully and elaborately in rose points and dutchesse lace. An exquisite lace wedding veil, a family heirloom, was caught prettily in her dark hair with sprays of orange blossoms and fell to the hem of her gown. Her bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley. The bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Charlton Marshall, of Covington, Ky., his cousin, met them as they advanced to the altar of palms and a pretty tableau was formed for the wedding ceremony. Rev. G. H. Root, of the Presbyterian church, performing this.

After the congratulations which followed a beautiful wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Brent left at 10 o'clock for Ashville, N. C., where their honeymoon is to be spent.

The bride is one of the most popular girls in Kentucky, a charming, cultivated girl and exceedingly intellectual. The bridegroom is handsome and is one of the most popular men in society, well known and liked all over the State. He is one of the prominent firm of commission merchants in this city, where he and his bride are to make their future home.

Among the guests at the wedding from this city, were: Mr. and Mrs. Miller Ward, Mr. Quincy Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Davis, Miss Matilda Alexander, Miss Tillie Brent, Mr. John Brennan and Mr. G. Bacon.

October Brings the Fullness of Fall Readiness.

The Store sparkles with Newness and Brilliance, from top to bottom. No fashion shown in this section of Kentucky ever presented such a comprehensive array of all things interesting to women in matters of style and dress. A personal trip to the larger cities could not secure for the most favored woman a view of Ready-to-Wear apparel so comprehensive, or artistic, so original and beautiful as is presented by our

Autumn Exhibition of Tailored Suits and Separate Coats.

Here is the (creme de la creme) of what the best Eastern designers have produced this season. Here are suits that would grace the most important dress function of the year—a collection, the equal of which has never before been gathered by any store in Central Kentucky.

Our big Cloak Department attracts hundreds of people from every section of the Blue Grass and the walking suits are praised and purchased with enthusiasm and women are gratified to know that the novelty suit bought at Kaufman, Straus & Co. is never duplicated for some other wearer.

But the Fashion Show is Endless.

The new Autumn Waists.
The Silk Negligees.
The new Neckwear for Women.
The new Silks and Dress Goods.
The new Veilings.

Let Us Merely Suggest that You See

The French Lingerie.
The Infants' Wear Things.
The new Handkerchiefs.
The new Kid Gloves.
The new Dress Trimmings.

Handsome Woolen Goods.

The long Coat Suits and all other Fall and Winter Suits for Women, for that matter, require a mannish fabric to bring out their proper effect. Manufacturers have copied their designs from the men's goods and can scarcely produce them fast enough to meet the demand.

We have been so fortunate as to secure a large quantity of the real men's woollens and thus provide at a low price fabrics far handsomer, more serviceable and that will tailor far better than any of the copy fabrics that cost even more.

1903 Waistings.

Marvelous Showing of Patterns.

English fancy Vestings beautifully mercedized in white and colored Jacquard effects. Natty designs in new Basket Weaves and Oxfords. The range of pricing would take a lot of your time—you might not get to the store, so we'll jump to details.
Beautiful mercedized vestings in stripes, plaids and dotted effects.

First Car.

The first car to make the trip to Paris over the interurban line was the Georgetown, Lexington & Paris car No. 21, on Sunday. The trip was made without event, and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the first trip over the new line.

The power station, about four miles from Paris, of course, was running, and although the trip was made slowly and carefully, nothing went wrong and it was a success in every way. The car did not come any farther than Fourteenth street, in this city, as they could not make the curve on account of connections not being all made on the rails and the current was too weak to push the car around the curve.

The road is ready to carry passengers, but a schedule will not be put on until the road is well ballasted, which will take three or four days to complete. The work on the line has continued without abating for the past few days, and work was continued without interruption by having a day shift and a night shift.

It is more than probable that the road will be in good running order sometime during the present week.

CLOAKS—JACKETS.—Best line of cloaks and jackets of latest styles and lowest prices can be found at (1t) HARRY SIMON'S.

Robbed By Colored Boy.

Mrs. Graham, nee Birdie Pollock, of San Francisco, Cal., who has been the guest of Miss Winnie Williams, in this city, was the victim of a robbery, and on Sunday Officer Hill arrested a colored boy named George Hall, who worked at the Williams homestead.

The articles stolen were a pair of kid gloves, a dress, a pair of lace curtains and a handsome card case, which was valued at $40. Forty dollars in money was taken, which was recovered.

A tricycle, belonging to "Tot" Yerkes, was also taken.

The darkey admitted to taking all the articles, with the exception of the card case.

On account of Mrs. Graham leaving for home on Sunday afternoon, she would not prosecute the negro and he was turned loose.

Free Delivery Of Mail.

The post-office inspector was in the city yesterday, and held a conference with Postmaster Sweeney, in regard to the establishment of a system of free delivery of the mails for this city.

The inspector surveyed the grounds and found that the floor space of the post-office was inadequate and that more room would be needed before the matter was fully decided upon.

Postmaster Sweeney informed the News man that the owners of the property would soon build additional room, and that it was only a matter of a short time before Paris would have the free delivery.

A slight blaze in the Georgetown bridge called the department out on Friday, and the same day the department responded to a call on Upper Main street, where a small blaze was discovered in the roof of the house formerly occupied by John Gaper, the property of Mrs. Mary Ingels.

BARGAINS IN SKIRTS.—It will pay you to attend the special sale of skirts this week at my store. HARRY SIMON.

JACKSON'S Cough Syrup has stood the test for 60 years.

PLANTING TREES.—Now that the walnuts are falling, we would urge our farmers to plant everywhere on their farms large quantities of the nuts to replace the walnut trees which are being sold by them. Especially, would we suggest, that the nuts be planted along the route of the interurban line between here and Lexington, which would most certainly beautify the route. See another article on this subject on page 3, of this issue of the News.

Shirt Waist Sale.

Within the last few seasons—as a newspaper fashion article observes the all-the-year-round use of Wash Shirt Waists has gained many advocates. And wisely, for the Wash Shirt Waist can go into the tub each week and emerge fresh and spotless. And, for the majority of women, it is far more comfortable in the average super-heated than one of silk.

So, enter the Fall Shirt Waists, in splendid array.

Mercerized Cheviots, Vestings, Hop-Sacking, that look like silk and outlast it. Whites in the lead, with small figures and darker colorings a close second.

The evening waists, made of soft, rich Crepe de Chenes and All-Over-Lace are simply elaborate.

And as to styles—well, one way is to take a peep at the display in our east window, but the best way is to come up to the

Waist Department

on the second floor and see the collection yourself.

The Styles as shown at this Store are an illustration of the best there is in America and Foreign fashions. Nowhere else in this section of the State is there to be found such exhaustive representation.

NIGHT.

When you have walked the weary way—
The weary way that leads by moon
And takes you to the end of day,
You know there waits for you a boon;
You know that on ahead is rest,
For roses drip with twilight dew
And all things seem but for the best
When Night holds out her arms to you.

When Night holds out her arms to you,
You know your cares have found release,
That what stern battling you must do
Is for the time bid pause by peace;
For down the slopes the shadows drift
And singing breezes falter through
The silence where the hills uplift—
And Night holds out her arms to you.

When Night holds out her arms, it seems
As though she brought each one a crown—
A crown of happiness and dreams,
She comes to countryside and town
With poppies in her dusky hands,
And poppies in her garments, too;
All gracefully she comes and stands
And holds her soothing arms to you.

Just so when you are through with strife,
And, all world-weary on your way,
You reach the ending of this life—
For life is but a little day—
There will be naught to make you sad,
But all will be fair to your view,
You will be comforted and glad
When Night holds out her arms to you.

Her guest looked at her somewhat suspiciously. Such graciousness from such a source was too unexpected to be received without reservation, yet he was not to be outdone in courtesy.

"Ah, madam," he said, as he bent to kiss her hand, "you little know what a pleasure it is to me to receive so kind a welcome at your hands. 'Tis doubly precious; first, because it comes from your sweet self and second, because it leads me to believe that you will extend the welcome to embrace me not only as your guest but as your nephew. Doubtless your niece, who I see by her horse without the gate is now with you, has already acquainted you with the happiness she has bestowed upon me in consenting to become my wife. I am here to claim the consummation of that promise. Advice from my general, Cornwallis, tell me that our army is to move and that my detachment may be sent into North Carolina. I fear, therefore, it may be many days, nay, months, before the fortunes of war permit me to return hither, and I cannot leave without knowing that your niece is under the protection of my name. My good chaplain is with me, prepared to make us one, and I have but to crave the hospitality of your roof and the boon of your blessing for the completion of our happiness."

"You cannot mean," Mrs. Ellery cried, "that you expect to marry Jane here—now? My good man, you are out of your senses."

"Nay, my dear madam, never more in them, I assure you. Love is a great sharpener of wits."

"Maybe so, when it has any to work on," his hostess retorted with asperity, flinging aside her role of affability. "But you will find yourself upon a fool's errand. Jane is in no mood for marrying, I trow."

"We will allow Mistress Jane to decide that for herself. May I trouble you to call her?"

"Yes, right gladly will I call her and let her rebuke your insolence as it deserves." She stepped to the hall door. "Jane, child, come here. Col. Bessemer wishes to speak with you."

Jane was astonished that her aunt should summon her, but she presumed there must be some urgent cause—a message from her father and mother or her brother, for she had seen through the window that Edward was not with the officers; therefore she stepped from the room into the hall. Catching sight of her, Bessemer went swiftly forward and took her hand.

"I have come," he said, bending his head and speaking in a low tone, "to claim the promise you made me. My chaplain is without, prepared to marry us. Dispatches from my general, Cornwallis, as I have explained to your aunt, necessitate my immediate departure. I cannot leave without knowing that you are surely mine, bound to me by the sacred ties of matrimony."

Jane recoiled. "You cannot mean," she exclaimed, "that you have come to marry me now?"

"And why not? Was it not to be when I chose?"

"True; but surely you will give me more time. My father, my mother, even my brother, are not here. You would not have me marry without their presence? No; I am confident you have but said this to test my loyalty to my promise."

"And if I had," he sneered, "it would seem the test has proven a severe strain; that the tension has brought your promise to the breaking-point."

"You wrong me," she answered. "I am ready to keep my promise, but I had expected more charity in time."

"Yet, as I recollect it, there was no question of time in our compact save such time as should be of my choosing."

"That is so; and yet I am sure you will not take it ill if I beseech you to make your choice of a later date. You cannot consider it unreasonable that I should ask a little time for preparation—a week, if you will; but if not, then a day. I am certain you will grant me this."

Her every protest but served to increase Bessemer's determination. "It may be that my memory plays me false," he remarked, "yet it occurs to me that the other night you promised to marry me at any moment which might seem to me most expedient. This is the moment; but if such were not your promise, then, of course—"

"Such was my promise, but—"

"But now that the object for which that promise was given is attained, I may whistle for the payment of my claim? Is that your stand? Well, while I should have looked for fairer treatment at the hands of a daughter of the Ellerys and the sister of your brother, still—"

"Say no more," Jane interrupted proudly. "I shall beseech no further favors. I am prepared to do your bidding."

"Ah, madam," he observed, "it is your better self which speaks." He turned toward the porch upon which Mrs. Ellery had remained impatient. "My dear aunt to be," he said, "I am a candidate for your congratulations. Your beloved niece has promised to marry me at once."

"Jane, what folly is this?" her aunt cried. "It cannot be that you have submitted to this man's importunities? Fie, I am ashamed of you! You are no niece of mine."

"Dear aunt," Jane answered wearily, "it is the keeping of a promise. You would not have me break it?"

"Tush!" the other woman exclaimed; "there are worse things than broken promises. I have seen the Ellerys make fools of themselves many a time to keep their word, and regret it bitterly afterwards. Thank God, I have no silly Ellery traditions back of me. I am a Morgan, and a Morgan is not afraid to break a promise if by so doing greater crimes can be prevented; and what greater crime could there be, Jane, than the perjury of swearing to love and honor this man when you know that you do neither? Think you," she continued, "that I will permit my house to be the scene of such a farce? Never! You must find some other speed."

Bessemer turned with lifted brows to Jane. "If," she said, in answer to his look, "my aunt will not permit us to be married under her roof, she will not, I am sure, drive us from her garden."

She descended the steps as she spoke, glad to get into the open, for even the well-ventilated hall was choking her. Her pride forbade her to make another protest against the keeping of her promise, and she was anxious to have the ordeal over.

Bessemer summoned the chaplain and the higher officers, and with a brief but adroit explanation requested the reverend gentleman to perform the ceremony. That holy man began a hasty search for his book, not being prepared for so startling a demand. Bessemer's brows contracted as the search lengthened.

While they all stood thus, they were startled by shouts coming from the hill where the Ellery mansion had once stood. The shouts were followed by some scattering shots which fell far short, as they were meant to do of the waiting group. Upon the hill could be seen a gathering of many horsemen.

Officers and men turned eager eyes upon Bessemer. Would he respond to this challenge sent him from that distant point, or would he proceed with his marriage? But Bessemer had been soldier before he was lover, and to do aught but respond was his nature. With a hasty word to Jane, a ringing command to his men, he leaped into his saddle and dashed towards the eminence. The horsemen whirled about. Their mission was accomplished—to draw him from the Ellery place. Neatly dodging Edward with his pursuing force, they had galloped towards the Ellery plantation, only to find Bessemer there before them. Worthington, remembering Bessemer's hand in burning Mrs. Ellery's other home and too far off to recognize Jane, had not known but that Bessemer's present mission was a marauding one. To draw Bessemer's attention from the unprotected mistress of the house to themselves was the quick scheme of his companions and himself.

Then began a long chase and a hot one. Bessemer's force was nearly quadruple his opponents', and could he have cornered them it would have meant their extermination; but with their virile steeds, their knowledge of every hollow and ravine, every rock and crevice, he had only the excitement of the race for his pains; yet it was not in him to give up so long as his wily foes let him keep them in sight, and night overtook him ere he abandoned the pursuit.

Returning disgruntled to the highway, he met a messenger from Cornwallis with an imperative summons to join the main army at once. However great the temptation might have been to tarry long enough to consummate his interrupted marriage with Jane, he was yet too great a stickler for discipline to do otherwise than obey instantly the commands of his chief.

CHAPTER XIV.
HE DID A-WOOLING GO.

It was the second evening after the Americans had so cleverly given the British the slip that Capt. Worthington set forth from his father's house. The captain's continental uniform had been laid aside, and he was attired in the most approved riding costume for gentlemen of that day.

His high-top boots so shone that you could have used them for mirrors with the greatest ease; his knee-breeches were of finest broadcloth; the frills of his shirt were beautifully pinked, while the playful evening breeze toyed with his open coat just enough to display its rich crimson lining. Those who had seen him two days before would scarce have thought he could turn out such a top.

When he reached the Ellery place and dismounted to open the great gates which led to the avenue the sun was just sinking behind the strip of woodland to the west, while such of the west windows of the mansion as were closed blushed brilliant red under the ardor of its good-night kiss.

The low branches of the handsome elms bent towards him with murmurous greeting; a toad hopped from out the bordering grass and looked up at him with beady, friendly eyes; a dog came from around the house and ran towards him with joyously wagging tail and gay bark. All bespoke a gracious welcome. When he reached the front door there was no need to lift the heavy knocker, for Gabriel had caught sight of him from somewhere within and hastened to meet him, while Absalom came to take his horse, a great concession, Godfrey knew.

"Yes, sah, Massa Godfrey. Missy Jane am home, sah," Gabriel declared, too sure of the fact to wait to ask his young mistress about it.

Godfrey, anticipating a better opportunity for private converse with Jane outside, declined the invitation to enter the house and settled himself upon one of the seats which ran along the side of the portico. Lightning-bugs were flashing among hands; but the one hand Jane gave him was cold—cold despite the fragrant warmth of the night.

"Ah, Jane," cried Worthington, the heat of his own emotions making him impervious for the nonce to the chill of her demeanor, "how I have longed for this moment, for this opportunity to see you, since that blessed night when you saved my life; and did far more than save it—made it worth the living by telling me that you loved me. It seems incredible that but four days have passed since then. They seem rather like four months, so lagging has been each moment until I could again be with you."

With an effort Jane freed her hand from his strong clasp and moved away from him to the edge of the portico.

"Capt. Worthington," she said, without looking at him, "I pray that you will forget that night and all that occurred then. Let us cancel it from our memory."

"Cancel it?" he gasped. "Cancel it? Jane, what do you mean? Is this some joke, some witticism, that I am too dull to see the humor of?"

"Nay," she answered, half turning towards him and speaking in a voice whose sweetness was lost in over-earnestness, "when I tell you that I am betrothed to Col. Bessemer you will possibly understand."

"Betrothed to Col. Bessemer? And since when?" He came closer. "Since when? Were you, perhaps, betrothed to him that night when you risked your life to save mine; when what made that life worth the saving was the belief that you glorified it by your love? Tell me, Jane, were you betrothed to Col. Bessemer then?" He laid his hand upon her arm.

She shrank back. "No—since."

"Since? And with the memory of that night before you? No, I will not believe it. You are playing with me; but seeking to test my love—my faith in you. Know, then, that there is no test you can bring to bear which it will not stand. I believe in you, in your faithfulness, as I believe in God."

The girl threw out her hand in a gesture of despair. How hard, how bitterly hard, he was making it.

He came still closer. "Speak to me, beloved," he said. "Tell me why you thought it necessary to put me to this test?"

She clasped her hands in front of her. Temptation was pressing her close; pressing her to throw herself into his arms; to tell him all; to acquaint him with that wretched bargain she had made; but if she should yield—if she should tell him? What then? It would mean the forfeit of his life or Bessemer's. She knew that he would never rest until one life or the other had paid the penalty.

No, no; honor, duty, everything demanded that she herself, no other, should pay the price. It was she who had done the bargaining; she had bought with her eyes open; and was the price too great to pay for that which she had bought? With the living man beside her, could she regret her purchase? If she had it to do over, would she not again do what she had done? Just to know that he was in the world, was that not enough to pay any price for?

She turned to the figure beside her. "In stress of excitement, Capt. Worthington," she said, "we oft do that which our cooler judgment does not approve. You and I have been friends from childhood. I have long looked upon you as a brother. Your life is nearly as precious to me as my own brother's. That night, when I had devised a way to save it and you were so lagging in availing yourself of the opportunity—"

"You?" He bent his dark head towards her.

A soft-footed, dusky figure had a minute before lighted the tree of candles which stood upon the carved cabinet within the hall. The light shone through the broad entrance and spread across the portico, but Jane resolutely kept her face turned towards the twilight, which was deepening into night, and the brilliant glow at her back served rather to throw her features into shadow than to betray their emotions.

"And you—what, Jane?" Godfrey prodded gently.

She clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. The task she had set herself was a lacerating one, but she went on with it bravely, if falteringly. "And it may be that I—in my anxiety that my old-time friend, that Mary's brother, should not recklessly throw the chance of saving his life away, it may be that in the flurry of the moment, I—led you to believe—my feelings—she stopped, and then she gathered her determination and continued—"were of a different character—"

"Jane!" The cry was that of a wounded animal.

There was a heavy silence, weighed upon her side with rising fear, with the strangling of loving impulses; upon his, with a gathering torrent of anger that was sweeping away the daze the blow had caused him. When next he spoke his voice was harsh.

"And so," he said at last, "Miss Ellery had resorted that night to her well-known talent for acting—one of her many gifts—to deceive me into the belief that the life she offered was really of value. Now that I am acquainted with its true worth, you may be sure I shall guard it well."

He strode down the steps, across the gravel, into the gloomy interior of the avenue. He had forgotten that his horse was in the Ellery stables. Out through the wide gates he went, into the dusty road, over the miles that lay between his home and Jane's; and Jane still leaped, a white and broken figure, against the pillar of the portico.

the trees of the avenue; a katydid set up a plaint in the wistaria vine beside him; in the dark depths of the woods an owl was hooting. The silence of night was falling, and with it had come the night-sounds.

Gabriel hurried up to Jane's room to announce Godfrey's arrival, and not finding her there hastened to the evening Jane and her stepmother were likely to be with the invalid. Gabriel did not know, as the older servants of the David Ellery household knew, that young Worthington was not in favor with Mrs. Ellery.

Jane, who had been reading to her father, let fall the book into her lap at his announcement of Worthington's arrival while Mrs. Ellery dropped her embroidery. An instant's uneasy silence pervaded the apartment.

"The insolence!" said Mrs. Ellery at last. "How dare he come here in this high-handed manner? And how has he escaped the British? When last we knew of him, he was their captive, only saved by Col. Bessemer's great clemency from being a corpse. No doubt he is now a fugitive, fleeing from them, and relies upon you, Jane, to aid his escape or to hide him here. Was there ever such audacity? Gabriel, tell the man to be gone; that under no consideration will Miss Jane see him."

Up rose Jane, and laid her book upon the near-by table with an emphatic slap. "You must permit me," she said, looking coldly at her stepmother and for once blind to the nervous frown which had gathered upon her father's brow and to the wistful look which ever came into his eyes at sign of disagreement between her and his wife, "you must permit me to deal with my visitors as I see fit. Gabriel, you may go."

She swept from the room, out into the hall, and half-way down the stairs; and then she stopped—stopped to collect her thoughts; to still the flutter of her heart; to plan her mode of procedure.

Godfrey, sitting upon the portico, gazing into the peaceful night, was thinking of the beauty of the surroundings: of the luxuriance of Jane's home. It required no little courage, no small amount of self-confidence, to ask her to leave it for him; and that she could think enough of him to do it—ah, that was the wonderful thing.

Yet, if all went well, when this war was over, when American success was assured, as he never doubted it would be, he could offer her a home scarcely less beautiful, for he would accept his grandfather's offer to manage for him his estates in Virginia. Settled in the great white house under the Virginia oaks and walnuts, Jane would miss but little of the luxury of her present abode.

There was a flutter of white upon the staircase, a soft step across the hall. Godfrey sprang to his feet. "Jane!" he cried, holding out both hands; but the one hand Jane gave him was cold—cold despite the fragrant warmth of the night.

"Ah, Jane," cried Worthington, the heat of his own emotions making him impervious for the nonce to the chill of her demeanor, "how I have longed for this moment, for this opportunity to see you, since that blessed night when you saved my life; and did far more than save it—made it worth the living by telling me that you loved me. It seems incredible that but four days have passed since then. They seem rather like four months, so lagging has been each moment until I could again be with you."

With an effort Jane freed her hand from his strong clasp and moved away from him to the edge of the portico.

"Capt. Worthington," she said, without looking at him, "I pray that you will forget that night and all that occurred then. Let us cancel it from our memory."

DISPLAY OF FORESTRY

Plans Laid For Excellent Exhibit From Kentucky.

CHAIRMAN ISSUES INSTRUCTIONS

Space Assigned the State for its Timber at the World's Fair in Middle of Forestry Building and on Two of the Main Aisles—Logs, Boards and Manufactured Articles to be Shown.

Kentucky has been assigned space for a timber display in the Forestry exhibit, which will bring it prominently before every visitor who enters the Forestry and Fish and Game building at the World's Fair. This space, thanks to the kindness of the chief of the department, Mr. Tarleton H. Bean, is almost in the center of the main aisles.

The fact that the forestry exhibit from Kentucky is to have such a prominent place in the building has caused the chairman of the Forestry

Sketch showing how logs are to be displayed in Kentucky's Forestry Exhibit at the World's Fair.

Exhibit Committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, Mr. A. N. Struck of Louisville, and the field representative, Mr. William Boa, to redouble their efforts in making the display worthy of the place.

Mr. Struck has had a draughtsman draw the accompanying sketch, which shows the method to be followed in displaying samples of Kentucky's forest resources. This plan is the most up-to-date yet found. It is recommended by government experts as the most economical and best way to make an exhibit.

Samples in eight-foot lengths are always worth something at the close of an exposition, if there is no further use for them for display purposes. By this plan adopted, the ends of the logs show the cross cuts while the section cut out in the middle shows the lateral cut, as well as the beauty of the grain.

In giving directions to lumbermen throughout the state who are to make exhibits, Mr. Struck says that all logs must be cut to eight feet, and that the diameter should not be less than 24 inches, if possible to get same. Arrangements are to be made to store these logs in two or three different places in the state, and have certain men prepare them so all shall be finished in the same way. In addition to the logs to be displayed there will be board samples, also cut according to instructions given by government experts. These will be partly finished and partly unfinished, so as to show the wood in its natural and in its finished state. While the log and the board samples will give an idea of the untold forestry wealth of Kentucky, the exhibit is not to neglect the forestry industries of the state, so far as finished products are concerned. Manufacturers of everything made from wood are invited to display these products in Kentucky's space in the Forestry building.

As the time for collecting the exhibit passes, lumbermen in all parts of the state who have not subscribed are contributing to the fund being raised by the Kentucky Exhibit Association, which makes possible not only the Kentucky building at the World's Fair, but this big display of her products and resources. Several firms and corporations have made second subscriptions to the fund. There are many lumbermen, however, who have not yet shown the substantial interest that was expected of them and the Exhibit Association announces that, if these will come forward, there will be no further doubt as to the success of the forestry exhibit.

UNIQUE AND VALUABLE PEARLS.
A unique pearl cluster from Shark's Bay, West Australia, will be exhibited at the World's Fair, by C. A. Burt. This valuable natural specimen consists of about 150 pearls in a solid cluster, and measures 1 1/2 inches by 3/4 inches, and is about half an inch thick. A cluster known as the Southern Cross, found some years ago at the Laced Islands, changed hands a short time ago. The consideration was $50,000. Experts in estimating the value of the cluster to be seen at the World's Fair, taking the Southern Cross as a criterion, place it at from $75,000 to $100,000.

GOOD CHEER.

He who believes in goodness has the essence of all faith. He is a man of cheerful yesterdays and confident tomorrows.—J. F. Clarke.

"Cheerfulness is a sort of rubber tire on life's vehicle. It eases the jolt over the stone in the road which prudence and industry have been unable to remove."

No good is ever lost. Nothing dies, not even life which gives up one form only to resume another. No good action, no good example dies. It lives forever in our race. While the frame molds and disappears, the deed leaves an indelible stamp, and molds the very thought and will of future generations.—Samuel Smiles.

SHREDS OF GOSSIP.

Robert B. Scott, a clerk in a Pittsburgh hotel, is a joint heir with President Roosevelt to the Vermilye estate in New York. His share will be but one-seventeenth part of the whole property, but as the property is valued at several millions of dollars he finds himself comfortably situated.

Ambassador Meyer is receiving the unflattering attention of the daily press in Rome for the alleged recklessness with which he speeds his automobile through the streets. Il Popolo Romano suggests that the ambassador persists in his course because, being unable to read Italian, he does not know what the papers are saying about him.

Just as Senator Burton, of Kansas, was about to start from Abilene for Salina on a handicap during the recent floods he asked the section foreman: "Where shall I sit?" "Sit!" roared the foreman; "you'll stand up and pump like blazes at these handle bars if you want to make this trip." The senator declares that he obeyed instructions, "for," says he, "no other human being could pump quite so hard as I did on that awful journey."

David N. Selleg, who has just died at Northport, Mass., though blind since childhood, made a fortune as a business man and inventor. In 1851 he began in a small way the manufacture of mattresses. The business growing, he began to make furniture; he invented new styles of chairs and furniture and went so far as to design and carry out their manufacture. His sense of touch was so wonderful that he could detect the slightest flaws in articles made in his factory.

IN GREATER NEW YORK.

The population of New York is about 3,600,000. Of this number only 78,339 pay taxes on personal estate.

Ice cream here is as staple as flour and beef, says the New York Press. New York pays over $50,000 a day for what it eats of this confection in the heated term.

The post office of New York city has 32 stations and 159 substations. In it is handled daily 45 tons of mail matter. Fourteen stamp canceling machines each handle 28,000 letters an hour.

The total number of arrests by the New York police during the year was 145,936, an increase of 12,187 over the year 1901. The Tenderloin surpassed all other precincts, with a total of 7,404; 3,835 were charged with intoxication, while 27,835 people were accused of disorderly conduct, and 9,230 of assault and battery.

Occupants of fashionable apartment houses and hotels in the neighborhood of the Fifty-ninth street plaza, New York, where the Sherman statue stands, are making a fuss because the commissioners are cutting down the fine old elms near the monument. Some of these trees are over 50 years old. "You can buy a statue any time, but you cannot duplicate the trees," is the burden of the objection. Still the elms are coming down.

(Editorial from Cynthia Democrat, Oct. 3, 1903.)

"And the General Assembly may, by general laws only, authorize cities or towns of any class to provide for taxation for municipal purposes, on personal property, tangible and intangible, based on income, licenses, or franchises, in lieu of a tax on real estate; provided, cities of the first class shall not be authorized to omit the imposition of an ad valorem tax on such property of a city steam railroad, street railway, ferry, bridge, gas, water, heating, telephone, telegraph, electric light, or electric power company."

There is the constitutional amendment upon which the voters are asked to pass judgment at the November election, and upon the adoption of which the welfare, the advancement and the continued prosperity of Kentucky are believed to depend.

The change is easily understood. Instead of raising revenue to pay the expenses of city and town government—the salaries of the mayor, police, firemen, the maintenance of the streets, public improvements, etc.—by assessing personal property as under the present laws, the legislature may authorize cities and towns to adopt a license system. All property, real and personal, in cities and towns will continue to pay state and county taxes as usual. No change whatever will be made in this respect, so that people who live in the country may vote for the amendment under the full assurance that it will in no way affect their taxes; except, the more the cities and towns build up and prosper, the lower the taxes on the whole people will become.

It is certainly asking a small favor that voters cast their ballots for this amendment at the November election. There is little doubt of its passage, if the people do not forget or neglect to vote on the question. There is no politics in it.

AS A LITTLE CHILD.

Off through the dark my little one
Goes seeking softly to my bed,
To clamber in and cuddle down
And on my bosom lay his head;
I hear him whisper coaxingly:
"Please let me sleep with you to-night,"
And as he nestles close to me
His childish fears are put to flight.

Ah, if he knew how weak, how frail,
Am I in whom he puts his trust,
How blindly and how oft I fall,
How oft my face is in the dust,
He would not rush to me when I
Come with her sable wings outspread;
The faith he has when I am near
Would cease to bring him to my bed.

Some day perchance they'll bring him
Where
I long have slept, from visions free:
And, weeping, they may leave him there
To lie eternally close to me.
Oh, may I hear him, trusting, say,
As he is reaching upward then:
"Please, father, I have come to lay
My head upon your breast again."

A SILENT COURTSHIP

DONALD GROSVENOR paused on the hillside with his easel under his arm, and stood surveying his surroundings with a critical eye. Before him lay the picturesque valley with its neat cottages and patches of deep, dark woods. But the object on which he fixed his attention was a curiously shaped rock in the center of a field, against a background of delicately tinted sky. It was shaped like the ruins of an old castle and was of gigantic proportions.

"I must paint that when it is bathed with the hues of a glorious sunset," mused Donald.

After admiring the scenery before him for a few moments he turned and slowly resumed his climb. On reaching the brow of the hill he came to a sudden halt, and an exclamation of surprise rose to his lips, for before him sat a young girl in front of an easel. She did not appear to notice his approach, and he stood regarding her closely for a moment. Then he stepped a trifle nearer to her and paused again, thinking to attract her attention.

"I beg your pardon," he said at last, lifting his hat. "I had no idea I should find anyone here."

He waited for an answer, but she did not speak or look up. He moved still nearer, and his shadow fell athwart her canvas. She raised her head in startled surprise.

He spoke again, apologetically, offering to retire if his presence would annoy her. But she only gazed at him blankly, and pointed to her lips and ears, shaking her head gravely.

Then it dawned on him suddenly that he had been talking to a deaf mute. He gazed at her as if he doubted the possibility of one so lovely being the victim of such a grave misfortune.

Her head was bent over her work again, and, feeling himself dismissed, he turned aside and placed his easel a few paces away, preparatory to commencing work.

"I must paint that face," he murmured, "if she comes again."

And she did come again. Each succeeding day found her at her easel, and she was always there before him. But all things must have an end, and at last his work was finished. He sat before his easel on the last day of his stay, absorbed in thought, when he was startled by a low whistle at his side. He looked up and beheld an old chum, Avery Lynn, regarding him amusedly.

"You?" he ejaculated in amazement.

"What charming company," said the other, in a low tone; "who is she?"

"I don't know. How came you here, Avery?"

"Never mind that now, Don. Introduce me."

"I don't know who she is, I tell you," reiterated Donald. "Only she is a deaf mute."

"By George! What a misfortune. She's lovely as a dream. You're hard hit, Don, I suppose?"

"I would give half my life if she were like other girls."

"I know the deaf and dumb alphabet," Avery said, suggestively.

"Find out who she is and where she lives," said Don, eagerly.

Was it fancy or the glow of the sunset or did a flush creep slowly into the face of the girl whom they discussed?

"Her name is Elda Leigh," said Avery at last. "And like yourself she is only a sojourner here. I can learn no more than that."

"That will be sufficient," cried Donald. Again that deep flush swept over the face of the girl, but neither saw it.

"I must go now, Don," said Avery, consulting his watch. "My friends are waiting by this time. You see we were hunting and I climbed the hill to get a better view of the valley. Good-by."

And Avery waved his hand and hurried away.

But life coming had served to bring matters to a crisis between these two, who had known a silent companionship for three long weeks. Elda Leigh watched Avery until he was lost to view. Then she arose and turned toward Donald. It seemed to him she was about to speak, and he was hardly surprised when she addressed him.

"I must beg your pardon," she said, "for the deception I have practiced upon you."

"You understand," she continued, "that I did not foresee I should become an eavesdropper. I saw you coming up the hill that first day, and not wishing to retire or be disturbed, I acted on the impulse of the moment, and—"

"May I ask, Miss Leigh," he said, "why you should undecieve me on this, our last day together?"

"I thought it just possible that we might meet again, some day, and then you would learn the truth, and perhaps have less charity for me than if I made a confession now."

She believed he would seek her, Donald thought, otherwise she would not have feared meeting him again. He had chosen to take refuge from his awkward position in cold reserve. He knew any advances made at this time would be premature.

"Shall I wait and carry your easel?" he asked, as he was about to pass her on his way down the hill.

"No, thank you," she replied, quickly; "I am not going for some time yet."

It was summer time and the balmy air was laden with perfume of countless flowers. The country was crowded with guests. It was situated among the Adirondacks, near a silvery lake, which bore upon its bosom great fragrant water lilies that quivered with each ripple. There were several artists among the guests, drawn there by the wild, picturesque scenery. Elda Leigh was one of them.

One day among the late arrivals she saw Donald Grosvenor. When they met he bowed with cold politeness and murmured something that sounded like "an unexpected pleasure." After that she saw him every day, but she took no notice of him except to give him a careless nod or smile each morning, and he, in turn, never addressed her. Though Elda tried so hard to appear indifferent to his coldness, she felt the sting of it nevertheless, and hardened her heart against him.

The climax came one evening about four weeks after Donald's advent to the hotel. The whole party of guests, with the single exception of Elda Leigh, had gone down to the lake to watch the moon rise over the water. Donald, having missed Elda, returned at once to the hotel. Standing in the doorway for an instant, he beheld her sitting on the piazza, gazing straight before her. She was in such deep reverie that she did not see him until he was by her side. She was startled into speaking then.

"I thought you went with the others," she said.

He did not answer, but took a seat beside her and gazed toward the lake, as if utterly oblivious of her presence.

"There is a much better view from here," she said to cover her embarrassment.

Still no answer.

Presently, from sheer nervousness at the embarrassing situation, she dropped her fan, and before she could reach to get it, Donald had picked it up and restored it to her.

"Thank you," she said, and raised her eyes for a moment.

But Donald only shook his head gravely and pointed to his lips and ears, as she had done on the day of their first meeting. The hot blood mounted to her cheeks, and her violet eyes darkened with anger. Never again should she feel humiliated in his presence because of her conduct last autumn.

She rose to her feet, her head held high, but Donald had placed himself in her way, and before she could pass him had caught her hands and was looking into her eyes with an eager gaze, as if searching her very heart. Their two souls met and recognized each other in their prolonged gaze. Then, with a slow, deliberate movement, in which there was much tenderness, he drew her into his arms.—Prairie Farmer.

PASSING OF FAMOUS HOTEL.

Old Ship at Greenwich, Notable for Nearly 200 Years, in Receiver's Hands.

The Old Ship hotel at Greenwich, one of London's most historic inns, has fallen into evil days, partly due to several bad seasons, the recent war, the death of Queen Victoria, and rainy summers. The Old Ship has not seen prosperity and now an official receiver has been appointed. It is difficult to believe that the life of the Old Ship is at a close. The time was when two of the most fashionable hostleries were the Old Ship of Greenwich and the Star and Garter of Richmond. It was no uncommon thing to see coaches and carriages standing in a long line far away along Greenwich road, while the smart people of the day partook of whitebait luncheons or dinner. It was there, too, where the members of the government held their periodical whitebait dinners round a big horseshoe table in a quaint old-fashioned room on the first floor, which visitors never fail to look into. At these ministerial dinners there always was an inversion of parts and subversion of authority, which recalled the licensed holiday of Athenian slaves. The junior member of the government, often a callow youth in the twenties, was placed in the chair, and the exalted officers of state, for that one evening, were under his control. Every one was called upon to do something quite out of his line. The serious man was commanded to make jokes, the sentimental man to sing a comic song, the facetious man to offer a few remarks on the incidence of taxation.

One characteristic incident is recalled. The late Lord Derby was called upon by the wagish chairman to propose a toast to the ladies, whereupon Lord Derby rose and pronounced the request an extremely fishy proceeding, and collapsed with a roar of laughter at his stupendous witicism, while everybody sat staring at him in amazement. The history of Old Ship as a favorite resort of ministers dates back as far as 1727.

Not a New Experience.

PRAYER RESTORES HER SIGHT.

A Remarkable Cure of an Afflicted Woman Is Reported from Oregon.

Dr. L. W. Brown, of Eugene, Ore., relates a most peculiar circumstance. He was called to Cottage Grove the other night to assist in an operation to remove an eye from a woman who had been blind in one eye for 35 years and it was deemed advisable to remove the useless member. The operation was to be performed the next morning, and the woman was placed on the operating table and the attending surgeons got their instruments in readiness for the operation, when the woman shouted that the Lord had restored her sight.

Those in attendance were greatly surprised at the outburst, but the good eye was closed and she was shown several articles and could see them plainly with the eye that had been blind for years and called the articles by name. There were half a dozen witnesses of the occurrence and all were dumfounded.

The woman had spent several hours in prayer previous to the time for the operation, and just before going on the operating table offered a final prayer to God to restore her sight. She naturally feels that her prayer was answered.

WOMAN BLOCKS A RAILWAY.

Great Enterprise in Mexico Forced to Halt Because of Prior Concession.

Recent advices from Topolobampo, Mexico, say the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad, promoted by A. E. Stillwell, of Kansas City, has been forced to suspend construction work in Mexico owing to disputes over important concessions involved in its route. Mrs. Owens, wife of a man who secured Mexican concessions years ago in furtherance of a huge colonization scheme that was never matured, discovered that the old concessions had not expired and they were placed in her name. It is believed that the Mexican Central assisted her in developing her rights, two solicitors of that company having had her affairs in charge. Recently the supreme court of Mexico sustained her rights to the concessions. Previously she is said to have offered to compromise with Stillwell for $2,000,000.

About 220 miles of the railroad has been built in Mexico, out of Chihuahua and Fort Stillwell, formerly Topolobampo, on the Pacific coast. The route includes Kansas City, Oklahoma and Texas before reaching Mexico, when it traverses the republic and finds an outlet on the Pacific coast.

SAW REMAINS OF WASHINGTON

Claim of a New York Man Who Applies for Admission to Almshouse at the Age of 100.

After reaching the age of 106 years Edward R. Norris, of Rochester, N. Y., has applied to the county superintendent of poor for admittance to the county almshouse. Norris says he was born in 1797 at the town now known as Unity Springs, N. H. Clippings and other documents that he produced seem to bear out his claim to great age. He has spent most of his life in Kansas, but recently has been living on a farm near here. Norris claims that he viewed the remains of George Washington at the time of the funeral, but he was then only two years old. He attributes his great age to the fact that he never married.

CHAIN OF SUGGESTION.

One Barber After the Other Had an Idea to Offer the Pertinacious Customer.

"A man up in my country had a melancholy experience," declared Senator Frye, of Maine. "This man determined to get a shave every other day and to let every barber cut his hair who suggested it. At the end of a week three different barbers had intimated that the hair needed trimming and were told to 'go ahead and trim.' As the hair was now beyond the trimming stage, the fourth barber's advice, 'that clipping would be beneficial,' was accepted. 'Now,' thought the man, 'the next barber will be satisfied that when I say 'shave,' I mean 'shave' and nothing more. Yet when the fifth barber mentioned 'clipping' he permitted his closely-cropped hair to be singed. The sixth night was on a Saturday. He went to still another barber, now satisfied that when he said 'shave' no barber would have the temerity to hint at an attempt to reduce the length of his hair."

"Did you ever try Dr. Compe's hair restorer?" questioned the barber as he took up a bottle.

"The Indians had a quicker way of getting at a man's scalp than these barbers," commenced Senator Chandler.

"Yes," said the Maine statesman, "but we are living under modern, not ancient barbarism."

For a Bad Back.

Sabra, Montana, Oct. 19th.—A great many men in this neighborhood used to complain of pains in the back, but now scarcely one can be found who has any such trouble.

Mr. Gotlieb Mill is largely responsible for the improvement, for it was he who first of all found the remedy for this backache. He has recommended it to all his friends and neighbors, and in every case it has had wonderful success.

Mr. Mill says:—

"For many years I had been troubled with my kidneys and pains in the small of my back. I tried many medicines but did not derive any benefit until last fall, when I bought a dozen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using them a few days I began to improve, my back quit aching and I felt better and stronger all around."

"I will keep them in the house right along, for in my opinion they are the best medicine in the market today, and if my back should bother me again, I will use nothing else."

Never Again.

Biway—Use an alarm clock nowadays? Jigsaw—No; never tried one but once.

"How was that?"

"Well, you see the first time it went off I didn't exactly know what it was, and so I said: 'O, for heaven's sake, Maria, shut up!'" Maria happened to be awake, and—well, that is how it was.—Stray Stories.

Best for the Bowels

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable."

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Reed, 2425 E. Cumberland St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you the good I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"I have been a great sufferer with female trouble, trying different doctors and medicines with no benefit. Two years ago I went under an operation, and it left me in a very weak condition. I had stomach trouble, backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, and was very nervous; in fact, I ached all over. I find yours is the only medicine that reaches such troubles, and would cheerfully recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., as thousands do. Her advice is free and helpful.

No other medicine for women in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK.
We are authorized to announce J. L.
Earlywine as Republican candidate for Circuit Clerk with James Shea as deputy.

SUPPLEMENTAL registration next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Do not fail to register.

WITHOUT the aid of the Government officials, the storekeepers and gaugers, what chance would the Republicans have in this State or county?

THOSE who were absent from the city and those who were sick on the day of registration, are entitled to register at the office of the County Clerk, on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct.
26, 27 and 28. No Democrat should fail to register. The Democratic plurality over the Republicans at the first registration was 223. It ought to be increased to over 250.

The Democratic party in Bourbon county and in the state is now practically united, and there is, therefore, no doubt of a sweeping Democratic victory by an old time majority. To secure such a result, however, each Democrat must work, and vote, and see also that every vote in his neighborhood is polled.
The Democratic victory next Tuesday week should be so decisive as to end Republicanism in Kentucky for all time to come.

It is difficult to predict which will be the banner Democratic precinct at the November election. In precincts Nos.
1, 2 and 3 in Paris, are some of the best and most active Democratic workers in the county, and in these precincts the majority should be very large. North Middletown No. 1, Riddles Mills No. 1, Flat Rock No. 1, Clintonville No. 1, and the two Millersburg precincts ought all to give big Democratic majorities. Let the Democrats in each precinct work with redoubled energy and each strive to make their's the banner precinct of the county.

—The marriage of Mr. Custus Talbott and Miss Grace Giltner will be celebrated at the bride's home, Thursday.

—Mr. Clarence Kenney, of Paris, was warmly greeted this week by his old friends here. Mr. Kenney was best man in the Galbraith-Chenault wedding, Richmond Register.

—Mr. and Mrs. Algan Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage, at Lexington, Thursday. The two sisters, Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Smith, are daughters of Mr. Wm. E. Hibler, formerly of this county. The occasion was celebrated with a jolly little supper for the two couples and their relative, Mr. E. T. Porter, at the Market street restaurant. The dinner was very pretty and served in several courses. Saturday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hibler, who are now on a visit to relatives at St. Joseph, Mo.

HON. LESLIE M. SHAW, Secretary of the Treasury, John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue have been on the stump in this state in the interest of the State Republican ticket. They both represent the Roosevelt administration. Besides, every Federal official in the state has been called upon to contribute to the Republican corruption fund. So, the Democrats have to contend not only with the Republican party of Kentucky, but also with the whole power and influence of the National Republican Administration. On the 3d day of November the Democracy of Kentucky will show to the whole county that they can rightly decide their state election, fought out mainly on local issues, without the interference of the government at Washington.

Dowie's New York Crusade.

Some wonder may be held as to the way in which Elijah could lose heavily in his New York visit, as his followers are paying their own expenses. The wonder will grow when it is known that Zion has reaped a rich profit in equipping and transporting the crusaders. The following table of money spent illustrates the financial method of the attack upon "the stronghold of sin."

Corn Show.

Col. Ion B. Nall, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who is chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Horticulture Exhibits for the Kentucky Exhibit Association, has announced that there will be a corn show limited to the crop grown in Livingston and adjoining counties and shown by grower, on the second day of the Farmers' Institute, to be held at Goodhope school house, in Livingston county, November 27 and 28, under the auspices of the Livingston Farmers' Club and State Bureau of Agriculture. The premiums will be paid in cash by Col. Nall. There are three each for best white and best yellow or mixed corn, ranging from $2 to $5, making a total of $20 in premiums. The samples will be turned over to the Livingston County Committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association for exhibition at the World's Fair in St. Louis next year. On the first day of this Farmer's Institute, there will be an open discussion of the World's Fair exhibit from Kentucky.

SENATOR GORMAN complains that President Roosevelt is interfering in the election in Maryland, and protests strongly against such interference.

It has been fully demonstrated that the Republican party is totally unfit to control affairs in Kentucky. A vote for the Democratic party will insure good government.

The market reports quote coffee as "strong." The man who is compelled to patronize the quick lunch counters is to be excused if he looks with distrust upon the report.

A CHICAGO woman, in her suit for divorce, says she knows her husband has become a hard drinker because he refuses to kiss her any more. The more probable explanation is that he has become sober.

SUPPLEMENTAL REGISTRATION.—The supplemental registration was held yesterday, the first day, at County Clerk Paton's office and resulted in the following registration: Democrats, 26; Republicans, 9. Total, 35. There are two more days in which to register.

EVERYTHING looks encouraging to Democrats. The registration in Louisville indicates that the city will go Democratic by a big majority. In Lexington, the Democrats are confident of carrying the county by from 1,500 to 2,000 majority. In this county, the prospects are bright for the Democratic ticket.

REPUBLICAN campaign orators and newspapers lay great stress upon the claim that Gov. Beckham is the beneficiary of a stolen office, but with reference to the infamous steal, under the forms of law, of the presidency of the United States in 1876, they are silent, very silent.

In Maryland the Democrats are making the supremacy of the white race the paramount issue. Without the assistance of their colored brothers, the Republicans would be defeated in Kentucky by at least 100,000 votes. Without the colored vote in this county, Republicans would be beaten more than 1,500. In the county, in the state, in the whole country, the white man ought to rule.

The Republicans are claiming a big majority in the Eleventh Congressional District—some placing the figures as high as from 20,000 to 25,000. To neutralize such a majority, it is necessary for every Democrat in the other portions of the State to work as they have never worked before. With proper efforts this county should roll up a majority of fully 500 for the Democratic ticket. If the balance of the county does as well as Paris, the majority in the county will certainly reach that figure.

AMUSEMENTS.

—The play of "Damon and Pythias" was presented at the Grand Opera House, in this city, on Thursday night, before a fairly good audience, and the presentation of the grand old historical play was given a first-class production and was much enjoyed by those present.

—Lizzie Evans and her most capable company presented "At Cozy Corners" at the Grand, on Friday night. The play and players were most acceptable and those present enjoyed the performance most heartily.

—The old-time "farce" of "The Two Johns" gave two performances, matinee and night, in this city, on Wednesday of last week. The production was a very tame one and gave little satisfaction.

—D. C. Wiggins presents to the theatre-going people of Paris, and vicinity, Chas. H. Yale's big spectacular New York production, the Everlasting "Devil's Auction." This is the same production that played here season of 1901-2. Most every one knows what this production is. The seat sale opens Oct. 31st, at Borland's. No seats will be reserved until that date. No one person can buy over ten seats. Come early. Tickets will go on sale, Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. Prices—25, 50, 75 and $1.00. Special rates will be made to box parties. Music by Sutton's orchestra.

WILL REMEDY EVILS.

Present Tax Law Is an Invitation to Duplicity.

P. N. CLARKE ON THE AMENDMENT

Simply Authorizes Legislature by General Laws to Permit All Cities and Towns to Raise Revenue for Local Purposes by Licenses, Franchises, Etc., on Personal Property.

The advantages to be derived from the adoption of the constitutional amendment at the election to be held Nov. 3 were explained at a recent meeting of the Louisville Credit Men's Association by Mr. Peyton N. Clarke, the Secretary of the Amendment Committee. He said:

"For years, under our former constitution, all cities and towns had the privilege of home rule and the right to tax themselves for municipal purposes without interference from anyone. It was argued by some, however, that this was a power no town or city should have, and the wise makers of our new constitution said that it would never do—that all property should be taxed alike. So the revenue law was changed.

"But the result has proved the fallacy of the idea, and the effect has been exactly contrary to the design.

"Under our present law the grossest inequalities in assessments prevail and there is not a single advantage to compensate for the innovation. When every person is his own assessor it is not strange that there should be great irregularities. The rich man easily escapes his fair share of taxation, as he covers up his stores of wealth, while the poor man with his all invested in a modest home has to pay more than his share, because all he has is in sight and cannot be hidden from the assessor.

"The proposed amendment will remedy all this to a great extent. It simply authorizes the legislature by general act to permit all cities and towns to raise revenue for local purposes by licenses, franchises, etc., on personal property, instead of the present ad valorem system.

"Its object is obvious. 'Under the new law our merchants, manufacturers and financial institutions will pay licenses and avoid the necessity of fictitious returns to the assessor. All personal property subject to taxation will pay its fair share of taxes, and by equalizing the burden it will sit lightly or all.

"Under the new law we can invite capital and industry with assurances of welcome, and our state will flourish as a green bay tree.

"The amendment is a step forward and will place us in the line of progressive states.

"We have had a dozen years of the ad valorem system of taxes, and they have been lean years to the industrial development of the state. Capital has shunned our shores. Our mineral and timber lands lie waste. Our interest rates are high and our people lack the spirit of enterprise.

"Let us have the amendment and we will find a different state of affairs, and Kentucky, with all her wealth of natural resources—her great rivers and network of railways—will blossom forth as the rose, and wealth will flow into our coffers, while health and happiness will be our inheritance."

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.
(Editorial from Cynthiana Democrat, Oct. 3, 1903.)

"And the General Assembly may, by general laws only, authorize cities or towns of any class to provide for taxation for municipal purposes, on personal property, tangible and intangible, based on income, licenses, or franchises, in lieu of an ad valorem tax thereon; provided, cities of the first class shall not be authorized to omit the imposition of an ad valorem tax on such property of any steam railroad, street railway, ferry, bridge, gas, water, heating, telephone, telegraph, electric light, or electric power company."

There is the constitutional amendment upon which the voters are asked to pass judgment at the November election, and upon the adoption of which the welfare, the advancement and the continued prosperity of Kentucky are believed to depend.

The change is easily understood. Instead of raising revenue to pay the expenses of city and town government—the salaries of the mayor, police, firemen, the maintenance of the streets, public improvements, etc.—by assessing personal property as under the present laws, the legislature may authorize cities and towns to adopt a license system. All property, real and personal, in cities and towns will continue to pay state and county taxes as usual. No change whatever will be made in this respect, so that people who live in the country may vote for the amendment under the full assurance that it will in no way affect their taxes; except, the more the cities and towns build up and prosper, the lower the taxes on the whole people will become.

It is certainly asking a small favor that voters cast their ballots for this amendment at the November election. There is little doubt of its passage, if the people do not forget or neglect to vote on the question. There is no politics in it.

—The Crown Roller Mills at Morganfield has kindly consented to send to the Kentucky Exhibit Association, for its agricultural display in St. Louis next year, samples from the finest grain that reaches its plant during the fall. This mill is also to make a display of its meal.
